

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of detecting a posture of an object comprises the steps of acquiring fringe image data carrying phase information of the object; subjecting the whole or part of fringe image data to arithmetic processing using Fourier transform so as to determine a tilt frequency of a fringe corresponding to an inclination of the object in the fringe image data; and detecting the inclination of the object according to the tilt frequency.